NorCal Sound & Communication JATC Held Its Inaugural Completion Ceremony For Its Apprentices

“This is a really big deal for us,” said Terry Monroe, Director of the Northern California Sound and Communication JATC. “It is gigantic for all our apprentices to have their own completion ceremony. Our students have been asking for this for years.”

“Historically the Sound and Communication apprentices have had their recognition combined with the Local Inside Wire Person’s completion ceremonies,” Monroe added. “The completion ceremonies have historically happened at the local level. This is the first time that the Sound and Communication apprentices can attend their own regional ceremony.”

“They’ve wanted to graduate with all of their classmates; they wanted to see a regional ceremony for all the S&C students together on the same night.”

In keeping with the historic nature of the event, there was a full schedule for the completion ceremony. The event began with a check-in and no-host social at 4 p.m., followed by dinner at 5 p.m. The completion ceremony, with photos, awards, and guest speakers began at 7p.m. and the evening was topped off with dancing at 8 p.m.

The guest speakers of the evening were Pat McMurray – NorCal Trustee and NECA employer, and David Nelson – Retired IBEW Local 595 S&C Rep..

Terry Monroe was the Master of Ceremonies during the completion ceremony. That event honored several apprentices who were named as an Outstanding Apprentice in respective Local areas. The completion ceremony also honored the apprentice that has Perfect Attendance. Each apprentice who graduates received a personalized hoodie with the IBEW logo and NECA badging.

After the completion ceremony, attendees were able to dance to music from a dj. Photographers were present throughout the event to take candid shots.

From Zero to Hero: Why Exercise Matters

By Sue Saso, MPH, CPT, NBC-HWC
Health and Well-Being Coach, Certified Personal Trainer

Have you heard? ANY amount of exercise is better than NOTHING! Yes, I mean anything! If you barely have time to exercise, or to read this blog, I'm here to tell you that 5 minutes is enough. Yes, 5 MINUTES of walking, biking, running, dancing, anything that elevates your heart rate, is always better than nothing. Research shows that just 5 minutes of moderate physical activity matters and may be beneficial to your health in many ways! It turns out that the special sauce to living longer is, drum roll please, exercise!2

How much exercise is enough?! The Physical Activity Guidelines for Americans from the CDC say what you probably already know: at least 150 minutes of moderate intensity exercise weekly (like brisk walking, cycling, or dancing), or at least 75 minutes/week of vigorous activity like running or sprinting, AND strength training exercises 2 times per week (like lifting weights, yoga, or heavy gardening). And don't forget to stretch!

Newsflash: most people aren't close to doing that much. According to Jama, only 20% of American adults and children are getting the exercise they need for optimal health. That's 264 million Americans missing the mark - yikes! There are some good reasons not to exercise, but there are many great reasons and benefits to move more. Here are some of them: it keeps your thinking mind sharp, it reduces your risk of developing type 2 diabetes and heart disease, it improves sleep, it lowers your risk for some cancers, boosts your mental health, and offers many more positive health benefits.

So, what's getting in our way? Lack of time, family obligations, long commutes, technology reducing our daily steps because we buy so many things from our desktop. There are many important things competing for our time. But the fact is, we don't move enough for our wellbeing and longevity.

Let's revisit the mantra that "something is better than nothing," because it's true! While the ideal goal is to build up to a routine of at least 30 minutes of physical activity per day (a minimum of 5 days per week), a commitment of 5 minutes of aerobic exercise is a great starting point. Like taking a walk during lunch time or after work! Once you've mastered that routine, try adding another 5 or 10 minutes. It may be a lot easier than you think, and before you know it, you will have worked your way up to the recommended 30 minutes per day. So why not give it a shot, and go from zero to hero? Your body and your mind will thank you!

Help Your Knees Help You On The Job

From the BaySport Team

The knee is a relatively simple joint that does a complicated job--provides flexible mobility while bearing considerable weight. While walking down the street, our knees bear three to five times our body weight. When climbing stairs, that force can multiply to seven times our body weight.

That force is borne by compact structures of bone and cartilage, supported by muscles and ligaments. When the knee is overstressed in sports or in everyday activities, those structures can breakdown and knee injury can occur.

Call the BaySport office now at 650-593-2800 and schedule your FREE Injury Clinic Consultation at our Redwood Shores Clinic.

The Knee Joint 101

The knee joint is really two joints: the patella-femoral joint, where the large bone of the upper leg connects with the kneecap; and the tibia-femoral joint, where the upper leg bone hinges with the large bone of the lower leg.

These bones are held in place by a system of passive restraints, the fibrous ligaments that hold the joint in place. The joint is further supported by muscle tissue, a system of dynamic restraints. When conditioned and strengthened, these muscles apply forces that help hold the joint together.

The menisci are pads of cartilage that further stabilize the bones, and provide shock absorbercy.

Treatment Of Knee Injuries

There is, unfortunately, no quick cure for any knee injury. Physical therapy plays a key role in treating and rehabilitating the knee, but you and specifically, your attitude toward recovery can be the biggest factor in achieving a successful outcome.

Preventing Knee Injuries

Your knee's tolerance for stressful activities will decrease with age and loss of conditioning. So, stresses that would not have caused injury in the past could hurt your knee today. A decrease in your level of activity over time will also contribute to the vulnerability of your needs.

There are things you can do to help prevent injury so you can continue to enjoy sports and exercise. Pursuing an exercise program designed by your physical therapist, and applying some good common sense, can be your best protection from injury.

The first step in designing your exercise program is an evaluation by your physical therapist. He or she can identify your predisposing factors, those body traits that may make you more vulnerable to a knee injury.

Based on this assessment, your physical therapist can design a program that will help you gain your optimum levels of strength and conditioning.

How Physical Therapy Can Help You Maintain Healthy Knees

One way to think about your physical therapist role is as a coach, a caregiver and mentor to lead you through a course of action toward achieving your goals for your health, comfort, and lifestyle.

It's important to recognize that you, the patient, are the most important participant in the healing and prevention process. They are, after all, your knees. Whatever treatment you receive from others is just as important as the care you give them every day.

Whether you are currently suffering from a knee injury, or trying to avoid one, your physical therapist has the skills to help. It all starts with a careful evaluation.

Evaluation & Therapy: Physical therapy places great emphasis on this process. Your therapist will take the time to talk with you and perform a thorough physical evaluation to identify your knee condition or predisposing factors. At BaySport, we conduct a thorough evaluation known as an Injury Clinic Consultation. This consultation allows time for you to share your individual situation and potential concerns with the physical therapist, who then performs a physical evaluation. Evaluations are done at the Redwood shores clinic location and take about 20 minutes.

Depending on the outcome, your physical therapist may plan a treatment regimen suited to your individual condition so you can begin working to restore motion and muscular performance or they may refer you to a physician based on their findings.

The goal of physical therapy is to return you to normal life as soon as possible, with the skills you need to prevent reinjury. You probably won't need to visit your therapist again unless you have another injury or pain.
